

MILAN SUVAJAC

FRONTEND DEVELOPER

PROFILE

As a frontend developer, my passion for programming began a few years ago. Prior to that, I worked as a self-taught freelance graphic designer, always striving for perfection and enjoying the process of creating something by myself. I wanted to expand my skills in web design, which led me to discover programming. I started learning on my own, and for the past few years, I have found myself in the coding world. I am thrilled that I found my true life path and never stopped learning and developing my skills, always eager to adopt new technologies. With every project, I strive to create something that I love and that brings joy to others.

"Live what you love" is a quote that resonates with me deeply, and I try to apply it to all aspects of my life.
